Knox Roofing and GAF Corporation Raise the Roof on a Habitat Home in Live Oak

Santa Cruz, CA October 13, 2015- Knox Roofing in conjunction with GAF Corporation recently donated roofing materials and installation to Habitat for Humanity Santa Cruz County. The in-kind donation was a significant contribution to the third home under construction on Los Esteros Court in Live Oak. The new roof was installed on the two-story three-bedroom home currently being built by Habitat for Humanity volunteers and the future homeowners.

David Foster, executive director of Habitat for Humanity, commented that “We are very appreciative that Knox Roofing and GAF made this donation to support our construction project on Los Esteros Court.” Habitat for Humanity builds houses with volunteer labor, donations of material and financial contributions. Los Esteros Court is no exception. By utilizing volunteers, in-kind donations and community donations, Habitat for Humanity Santa Cruz County is able to keep the building costs low and pass this savings on to the future homeowners. The Los Esteros Court development will be home to seven low-income families when complete.

Construction on Los Esteros Court began in June 2014. The first home was completed in May 2015 and sold to the Flores family. The second Los Esteros Ct home was completed in September 2015 and is home to the Iniguez family. Knox Roofing just finished installing the roof on the third home, future home of the Ogarrio family. Each family selected by Habitat for Humanity Santa Cruz County must complete 500 Sweat Equity hours as a contribution to the project.

Volunteer opportunities are available Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 8:00am to 2:30pm. If you are interested in volunteering with Habitat for Humanity Santa Cruz County please call 831-469-4663 or contact volunteer@habitatsc.org.
